

LIND ARRIVES IN SAFETY AT MEXICO CITY

Secy. Bryan Remains at His Desk Until Early This Morning When He Gets Word From Representative.

NO DISORDER AT STUDENTS' PARADE

Sen. Bacon Issues Statement in Which He Urges Everyone to Aid President in Settling the Difficulty.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 11.—Students and laborers estimated to number 1,000 paraded the streets of the capital Sunday carried banners as a token of their approval of Pres. Huerta's stand against adopting mediation by the United States.

Pres. Huerta had given his approval to the demonstration and he and the members of his cabinet reviewed the parade from a balcony of the palace. There was no disorder.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—John Lind, personal representative of Pres. Wilson to investigate the Mexican situation, arrived safely in Mexico City Sunday night, according to advices received at the state department from Charge O'Shaughnessy of the U. S. embassy at an early hour Monday morning. Secy. Bryan remained at his desk until long after midnight to receive the news.

News of the safe arrival of Mr. Lind with his wife and party in the Mexican capital followed several hours of suspense. The complete absence of any information of the progress of the party from the time it left Vera Cruz early Sunday morning added to the uneasiness which was heightened by vague rumors of attacks on Mr. Lind and his family and associates.

Pres. Wilson had retired when word of Mr. Lind's safe arrival was received and he was not awakened. Secy. Bryan remained at his desk until 1:30 o'clock this morning anxiously awaiting some report from the embassy at Mexico City. When it finally came it proved to be merely a terse announcement of the arrival of the special envoy, coupled with the statement that he and his party were safely quartered at the Hotel Lascruin.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—With the arrival Sunday night in Mexico City of John Lind, personal representative of Pres. Wilson, administration officials declared that no further steps would be taken in carrying out the policy of the United States toward Mexico until Mr. Lind has made a careful study of the general situation there.

While the president has mapped out a distinct course of action which strict secrecy is being maintained, it is known that the instructions to be sent Mr. Lind from time to time will depend largely on developments in the Mexican capital in the next few weeks.

Mr. Lind will make all his recommendations to Charge O'Shaughnessy, so that whatever representations are transmitted by the latter to the Huerta government will differ in no way from the notes the American government has hitherto addressed to the de facto authorities in the Mexican capital. Mr. Lind's connection with them, it was stated, would not be apparent. His mission, it was explained, is to substitute unofficially for Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson, whose present views on the Mexican controversy were so pronounced as to make it embarrassing for the administration here to communicate them through him.

A Great Responsibility.
Further enlightenment as to the errand of Mr. Lind and the policy the president has formed came Sunday night from Sen. Bacon, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, who declared that Pres. Wilson was facing a "great responsibility in the present situation and had the hearty support and co-operation not only of the foreign relations committee, but of members of the senate generally, regardless of party lines." To explain various interpretations of Saturday night's conference between the president and the foreign relations committee, Sen. Bacon made the following statement:

"The foreign relations committee recognizes the fact that the president is acting in good faith in trying to solve this problem successfully.

"The president's undertaking is with that view and in that general purpose the committee are in accord and have confidence in his sincerity and integrity. They recognize that he wishes to settle the question without violence and for the best interests of the United States and Mexico. Of course he cannot now be expected to go into all details. In the first place some of the details are necessarily not yet worked out and depend, in a measure, on developments he is now pursuing. In the second place some matters of detail, if given out in advance in the present delicate situation, will defeat the very ends sought to be accomplished.

If After Information.
"One of the principal objects of Mr. Lind's mission is to get information from a capable and reliable man who has not been identified with either faction in this controversy and upon such information future action in a measure, will naturally be based. "There are some divergences of opinion in the committee. It could not be otherwise. Some favor more drastic measures than others. The committee generally sympathizes with the president's desire to avoid intervention of anything that will produce war. Even these, however, who favor drastic measures have confidence in the president and are supporting him in his present course. I think, with a few exceptions, there is no disposition to draw party lines. I think that is true of both republicans and democrats in the committee and in the senate generally.

"The president manifested a strong desire to have the co-operation of the committee and of the senate and frankly said he would be very glad to have any suggestion from them, either as individuals or as a body, and would welcome their assistance. The senators seemed gratified by that frank statement on his part.

"While there is a small element in this country that would like to see war, the large majority of the people deprecate it most earnestly and thoroughly sympathize with the desire of the president to avoid it.

"There is no secrecy on the part of the president as to the general purposes he has in view and the general methods he is trying to employ. While generalities can be safely dealt with, there are some matters of detail which, in a delicate situation of this kind, cannot be prematurely made public. Everybody realizes that it is a difficult question to handle and the strongest expressions upholding the president are heard from republicans as well as democrats, both in private conversations and on the floor of the senate.

Should Support President.
"There never was a greater responsibility on a man than now rests on the president of the United States, to guard this country against being involved in war on account of Mexico and I believe that it is the duty of every man, inside and out of congress, who has confidence in the integrity and capacity of the president to hold up his hands in the effort he is making, and to do as little as possible to embarrass him in working out successfully the difficult undertaking."

Secy. Bryan was at the state department for several hours Sunday, but except for the messages confirming reports of Mr. Lind's movements there was no information forthcoming. From other sources it was learned that the administration will carry out its program as originally planned, being guided by Mr. Lind's report of the situation. It was stated authoritatively that the American government had no intention of calling on Pres. Huerta formally to resign his office and that any representation he would be to call attention to earlier promises for a free and constitutional election, pointing that recognition by the United States must be withheld until such elections take place.

Secy. Daniels announced Sunday night that the cruiser Tacoma had been ordered from Newport, R. I., to the east coast of Mexico to take the American citizens desiring to leave the turbulent southern republic. Many Americans have found refuge on board the battleships of Rear Admiral Fletcher's squadron but as the battleships of Rear Admiral Fletcher's squadron can go into only a few of the larger harbors, it was decided to dispatch a vessel of light draft, to drop into shallow harbors along the coast.

POLICEMEN USE CLUBS ON WOMEN

Third Attempt to Take Premier Asquith's House Made by London Militants.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The third attempt of suffragettes under command of Sylvia Pankhurst to take Premier Asquith's house in Downing st. by storm failed Sunday, when the militant leader was captured by a cordon of police after a stiff fight in which the officers used their clubs.

The trouble began after a mass meeting held under the auspices of the Free Speech Defense committee, failed to demand the unconditional release of George Landbury, former socialist member of the house of commons, who was sentenced on July 30 to three months' imprisonment for making inflammatory speeches but was released Aug. 2 under the cat and mouse act while on a hunger strike.

Miss Pankhurst had refused an invitation to address this meeting when informed that she would not be permitted to urge her hearers to march upon Downing st. Free speech speakers advised the crowd not to attack the premier's residence, but at the close of their meeting, Miss Pankhurst mounted the Plinth of the Nelson column and in fiery words ordered her sympathizers to follow her.

Follow the Leader.
Hatless, her hair bound close to her head, the young militant leader started down Downing st. surrounded by a mob carrying the women's social and political flag surmounted by a red liberty cap and preceded by a flying wedge of dockmen and other husky east enders. The police in Trafalgar square allowed the procession to leave the square and then fell in behind. The militants rushed this line with such dash and courage that a few of them penetrated the first cordon where the fight became so fierce that the police used their clubs. Reserves then appeared and Sylvia Pankhurst and five other women and nine men were arrested and taken to the police station in taxicabs.

Disheartened at the fate of their leader, the mob sullenly dispersed. The police, blaming the suffragettes for many months of enforced Sunday work, cleared the streets with unusual roughness, mounted officers riding down women and children without discrimination.

One of the suffragettes, a Miss Cook, who carried a banner during the fight, said that Miss Pankhurst was badly injured during the melee.

SULZER DENIES ALL THE CHARGES

New York Governor Claims He Never Used Campaign Funds to Play the Stock Exchange During Race.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 11.—After a long conference Sunday night with some of his close political advisors Gov. Sulzer issued a short statement denying absolutely that he ever used campaign funds for speculative purposes. He says he never heard of the stock brokerage firms of Fuller & Gray and Boyer & Griswold, alleged transaction with which figured largely in the testimony before the Frawley legislative committee, until these names were brought out before the committee.

The governor admits he did apply certain campaign contributions to his personal use, but adds that he made the amount good. He also admits of having had transactions with the stock exchange, but insists that his account with this firm was not speculative and consisted of a loan on stock and collateral. He denies that he ever speculated in Wall street.

The statement was given out by Chester C. Platt, the governor's secretary. Among those present at the conference were Louis Marshall, John A. Hennessey, Louis Sarreky and Mr. Platt.

NEGRO FELS RUNAWAY HORSE WITH FENCE RAIL

He Hears Clattering Hoofs and Prevents Tragedy, Saving Minster and Wife.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Aug. 10.—A fence rail wielded by a Negro saved the lives of the Rev. and Mrs. I. T. Stafford of Lagrangeville Sunday in a thrilling runaway.

The preacher and his wife were riding behind a spirited colt, which took fright at the raising of the wagon-top and started on a mad dash down a steep and rocky road.

Amos Williams, a Negro farm hands, who was walking along the road, heard the clatter of the horse's hoofs on the rocky roadway. Running to a fence nearby he grabbed a rail, tore it from the fence and struck the horse on the head, knocking it to the ground. This saved the lives of the frightened occupants of the rig.

HAMLET TO BE SEEN ON SCREEN

Forbes Robertson, Famous English Actor, Takes Part in Play Before Camera.

Sir Johnstone Forbes Robertson, the foremost living actor, recently knighted by the king of England, has just completed his famous interpretation of "Hamlet" before a camera machine!

This achievement of the Gaumont company is the most interesting event in the cinematograph industry to date.

It means that millions of people, otherwise debarred of the privilege, will have the opportunity to see a Shakespearean masterpiece presented by a master.

It means that, upon the eve of his retirement from the stage, Forbes Robertson has taken the moving picture medium as a method of preserving to posterity a memento of his day and his work in the world!

Preparations for the production of "Hamlet" as a photoplay took months!

A special castle was erected on the cliffs of Lulworth cove, on the Dorsetshire coast of England. And all the traditional touches necessary to a faithful rendering of the production were remembered.

The completed work is the largest British film ever made and is said to be three miles long!

It may be interesting to know, in connection with the coming exhibition of the "Hamlet" moving picture, that the eminent English actor first played the role of "Hamlet" when he was a boy of ten.

For his initial production, given with his sister's brothers and a few friends in his father's drawing room, he made the footlights himself. He cut them out of tin and stuck candles in them!

After this amateur performance of the great Shakespearean play and part, Forbes Robertson studied it for years before he attempted it as a professional. Finally Sir Henry Irving induced him to play the role, and since then his "Hamlet" has been called by many critics the greatest ever given!

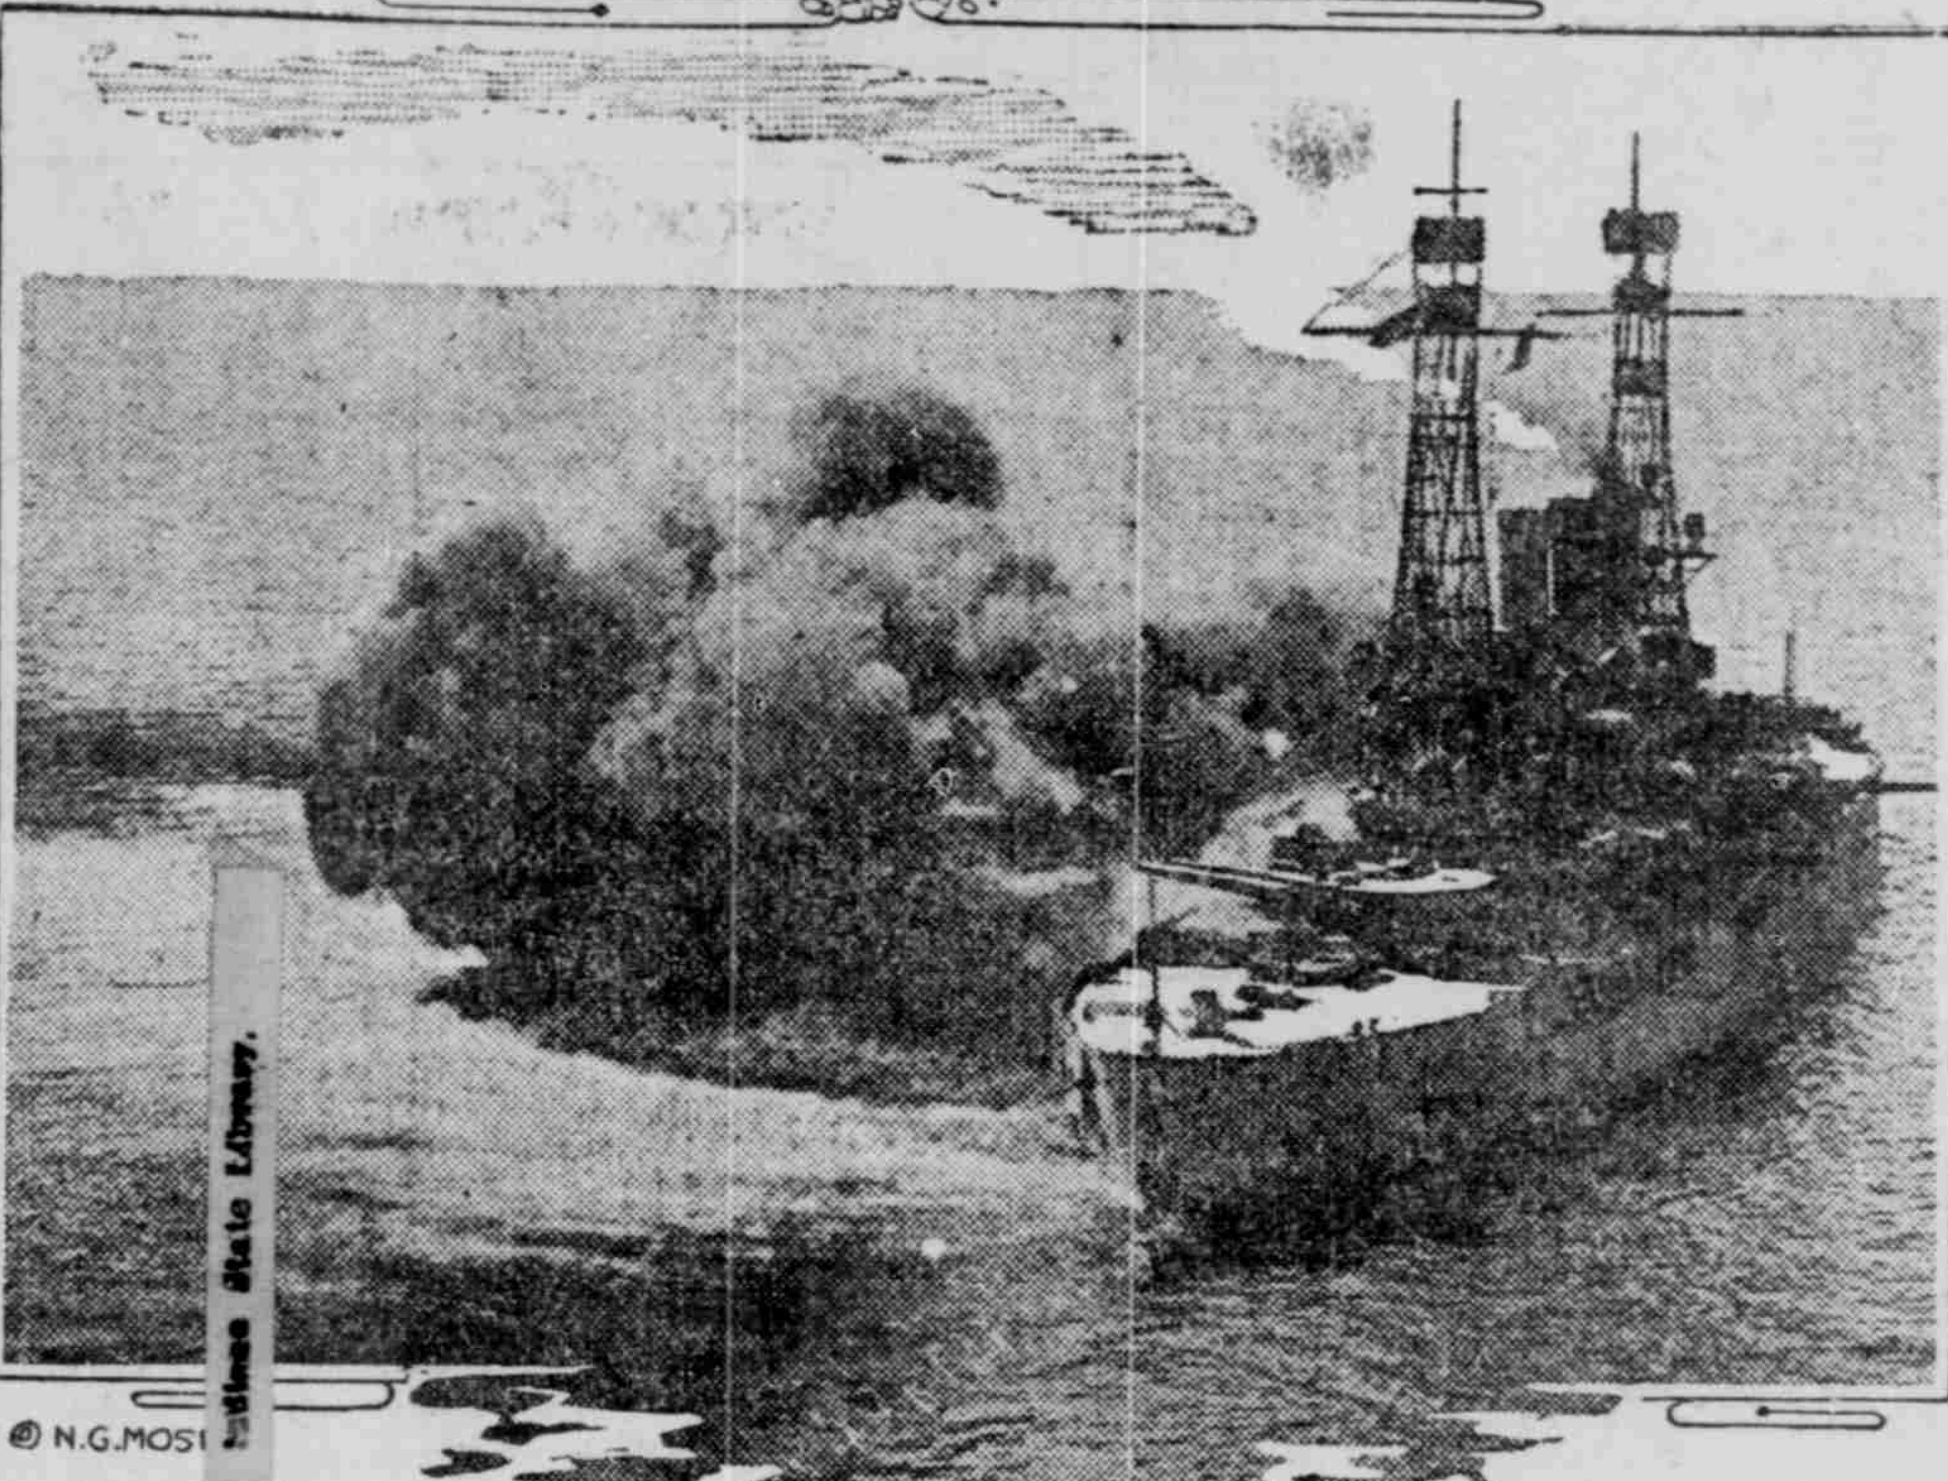

You will remember when you see the photoplay with Forbes Robertson in the leading part, that you are watching a man who has been one of the world's leading actors for a good deal more than 30 years.

The presentation of "Hamlet" on the screen will be a "last night" performance to the great public that has known and loved him as a star of the speaking stage, and a "first night" for the much greater public that has never yet had a chance to see him.

BUTCHER TO GO UP AGAIN ALSO HAGERMAN, MAYBE

Ex-Central Leaguers, Now With Denver, Are Being Dickered For.

Hank Butcher, an outfielder with Evansville, and Casey Hagerman, who pitched for Fort Wayne, members of the Central league a few years ago, are said to be ready for a trip to the big leagues. Both men are members of the Denver Western league team and several offers have been made for them.

Butcher was up with Cleveland, but failed to stick. He was first sent to the Philadelphia Americans and then to New Orleans. He then went to Denver, where he was working under Jack Hendricks, a former boss of the Fort Wayne team.

It is reported that Denver wants $5,000 for Hagerman and between $3,000 and $4,000 for Butcher. Butcher is hitting .388 in sixty-three games, and Hagerman leads the pitchers with an average of .378, winning eighteen games and losing five. If sold the players will be delivered at the close of the Western league season.

TRY FIVE MORE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Having had good luck in developing two kid twirlers, Engel and Boehling, this season, Griffith has arranged for five youngsters next year. Those so far purchased are Ayres and Hedgepeth, from the Virginia league, Williams from Helena, Mont., Love from Atlanta and Shaw from York, Pa.

MAYBE HE IS.

This Fred Malsen, for whom the New York Yankees have given Daniels, Midkiff and $12,000 (maybe) is a former Central leaguer, having played with the Wheeling Stogies four or five years ago. He was considered a likely looking youngster at that time, but under Jimmy Dunn at Baltimore he has developed into a great ball tosser. He is at home at third or short.

POCKET IN SKIRT THE NEXT FANGLE

PARIS, Aug. 11.—There is nothing more omnipresent in the costume of the late summer than the fancy bag, but it looks as if this season will see its final gasp. For we are told that one of the things which Dame Fashion is sure to introduce this fall is the pocket on the skirt!

However, there is nothing more coquettish than the universal hand-bag of lace, silk or embroidery that is being carried now. If you have a "bead bag" that has come down to you from great grandmother, be sure to use it, for those old-fashioned bags, over the making of which our ancestors ruined their eyes, is most popular.

The little gown in the picture is one of those stunning frocks which look so simple and cost so much.

It is of white silk voile with a band of embroidered cluny lace around the bottom. The kimono waist is made wholly of the embroidered lace. The belt and bag are of green and white striped satin and the hat is of white panama with white chiffon trimmings and a "green carnation" at the very edge of the brim.

Of the other bags shown the heavy crocheted lace one can be carried with a white tailored suit. The bead bag is, of course, to be carried with a visiting or theater costume and the little silk one can be made of any color to blend with diaphanous summer frocks. It looks as though the wash gowns will be worn as long as possible. I find that every year more women are wearing cotton frocks in the house all winter.

Already the wiley French manufacturer has arrived at this fact and you find cotton materials that are as expensive as silk and much more beautiful, being made in France. I am told, too, that the American cotton mills are making higher priced materials.

Out of all this frivolous fashion news the economical girl can get much comfort this fall from the fact that she can wear her summer gowns all through the winter and be in the very latest style!

FREES HORSES FROM BURNING BUILDING

Edgar Meade, 717 Emerick St., Releases Six Animals in Stable Fire—Baker Shop is Burned.

Through the heroic efforts of Edgar Meade, 717 Emerick st., six horses were saved from cremation Sunday morning when fire destroyed the big barn of the South Bend Sand and Gravel Co. at Niles and Crescent avs. Sixteen horses were in the barn at the time the fire broke out. Employees of the barn and firemen managed to get all but six out when the flames and smoke became so thick it seemed almost impossible to make another trip.

While Meade was in the stable groping for the animals the firemen played a stream of water on him, partially protecting him from the intense heat.

The cause of the fire is unknown. No 2 Hose Co. responded to the alarm. The barn was destroyed along with an addition of hay. Of the six horses brought out by Meade, one received such bad burns that it was shot. The loss was $1,000.

Early Morning Blaze.

An early morning fire Sunday caused a loss of $1,150 to the bakery of Stephen Powick, 919 W. Division st. The cause of the blaze could not be determined. Hose Co. No. 4 responded and put the flames under control before they had spread. The fire was confined to the rear of the shop. The loss to supplies and baking utensils is estimated at $1,000, while the damage to the building is placed at $150. Both are covered by insurance. The building is owned by Michael Doktor.

Gruber, in the eighth, hit for a home run. The drive was one of the longest ever hit on the Bourbon diamond.
